Detailed description: The topic of the event was the renewable energy

Conference on renewable energies: technological advancements and possible use of renewable energies with an emphasis on EU funding possibilities and a particular interest in local traditions of charcoal making. The participants detailed their achievements and plans and stressed that increased awareness is needed to conserve our natural heritage.

In Farkaslaka charcoal making is a long tradition. Still in the 1960's about 60% of the local population made its living from this labour intensive work. Over the years the settlement received a lot of critique as this was considered destructive. At this event locals tried to prove the contrary: new technologies were developed by the locals in the past 5 years, that participants could visit. The manager of the new facility as part of the conference described how emission is reduced and the by-product gasses are cleaned and used for generating electricity.

Detailed description:

Walking lecture: Current security issues in the Schengen zone and the advantages of EU citizenship. While walking along the border facts and corresponding security issues were presented and discussed, the everyday work of Slovakian border police was demonstrated. The Schengen treaty is part of the first and third pillar of the EU that allows the abolition of inner border patrols and common protection of the outside borders. Not all member states are part of the treaty and there are non-EU members too.
