Reviewer One
- Introduction/Background - The focus is more on the project setting and context but I recommend to take also the evidence of the used theoretical concepts into account (e.g. Continuity of Care and its associations to nursing case management or nursing led transition management; e.g. state of the research onto FTA)	Thank you for your comments. The introduction and background have been amended accordingly.
- Aim - The authors provide divergent phrasing of the aim: “The aim of this paper is to capture the reasons for ‘Failure to Attend’ (FTA) through the narrative of nurse navigators and their patients and to explore how it is defined by the patient.” (32/33) (thematic coding/content analysis is appropriate) “The aim of this paper is	Approx. number on roll	Age range taught & single sex / mixed	Thank you for highlighting this. The aims have been changed to more accurately reflect the paper’s content and to ensure consistency between the abstract and the body of work. This is now consistent	Dates employed month / year (from – to)	Reason for leaving to provide an understanding of the concept, use and impact of the phrase 'Failure to Attend' on the relationship between health services and navigated patients." (140/141) (a deeper, more interpretative method would be appropriate) This is not only a divergence in wording but rather in the appropriateness of the methods used for data analysis (please see the hints within the brackets). In my view, there is no good fit between the different aims, the research questions, the methods used and the reported results. Thus, I recommend to adapt the divergent aims and rephrase it consistently, in reference to the methods used. In that regard I also recommend to customize the research questions whilst taking the results into account. Full name and address of school / college / academy (state whether nursery / primary / secondary / comprehensive / selective etc.) include details of local authority if relevant			between the abstract and body and reads Abstract- "To understand the impact and causes of 'Failure to Attend' (FTA) labelling, of patients with chronic conditions." P. 2 Body- "The aim of the reanalysis was to understand the impact and causes of 'Failure to Attend' (FTA) labelling of patients with chronic conditions" p. 6 Post held and responsibilities including subjects taught and key stages taught

- Methodological issues - It is not clear how each of the 15 authors contributed to the study or this paper. Regarding	Apologies for the lack of transparency. The COREQ has now been	_____	_____	_____	_____

this, the COREQ-checklist is also fulfilled in an insufficient way and the given information did not create transparency. (e.g. Who conducted the group and individual interviews? Data were collected "...by members of the research team". Is the research team of this study identical as the team who conducted the evaluation?). I recommend to clarify the contribution of the authors and take the COREQ guideline into account in reporting this qualitative research. ———	completed in detail, explicitly describing the researcher's relationship to the method. This has been discussed in the method section. P. 7-8 COREQ is now listed as a supporting figure and cited in the manuscript. P.8. ———
The reported research design describes the interim evaluation of the nurse navigators approach. Interviews were conducted as part of this evaluation and the transcribed interviews were analysed with the thematic focus on FTA ("the management of FTAs and the effects this label has on patients when they are unable to attend specialist outpatient appointments." (170/171)). It is unclear if FTA was explicitly included into the data collection (e.g. as theme within the interview guide) in an iterative way or if primarily collected data of the nurse navigator evaluation were analysed with the new lens of FTA? I recommend to clear the difference explicitly if it	This section of the paper has been amended to clearly show that the FTA focus was as a result of the initial data analysis in the overall study. "The impetus to explore the FTA phenomenon qualitatively was based on the interim quantitative data analysis. Subsequently, during initial qualitative data analysis the term FTAs became apparent. The emergence of FTA as a phenomenon in both data sets, prompted a reanalysis of the qualitative data	—————	—————	—————	————— was an explanatory sequential mixed-method design including FTA as theme primarily OR a secondary analyses of the qualitative evaluation data? I think it was the second one, but in my view the manuscript is ambiguous with regard to that.——	to focus on more specifically on FTAs.” P. 6——

Data analyses: A combined deductive inductive approach was used to analyse data and out of this procedure a code system evolved. I recommend to report the code system (e.g. as mind-map, code tree or table) to ensure transparency and to guide the reader through the results by visualization. Description of data analysis is a bit confusing: “Second cycle coding was then completed by the research team members collaboratively, and codes were ... further developed within the analytic lens of the nurse navigator service” (208-210). Why did the authors not use the lens of FTA?——	Thank you for the feedback. The method now reads “While questions around FTA had not been specifically asked in interview, the topic came up in several interviews, particularly with the nurse navigators because it was central to the their work and they saw it as part of the explanation for patient’s alienation from the system. Initial coding was independently completed by two members of the research team who coded the data by single word, paragraph and full content (14). Second cycle coding was then completed by seven research team members collaboratively,	——	——	——	—— and codes were reconfigured, recategorized, resynthesized and further developed within the analytic lens of FTA (14). Final consensus of themes was achieved collaboratively within the research team with collated themes collapsed into major themes with accompanying quotes to demonstrate the themes (See S1 Fig COREQ Checklist)."

- Results - Conflicting patients'/health services priorities. In my view, the authors report predominantly reasons of failure and they identified access barriers (e.g. money, time, distance, disability, equipping). I cannot comprehend the label of this major code "Conflicting patients'/health services priorities". I recommend to provide a definition or meaning of the major code labels to clarify this.	Thank you for your comments. The presentation of the themes has been amended to more clearly describe the themes and the supporting participant quotes. These now read as; Access Barriers Failure to recognise personal stigma of FTA Bridging the gap

Failure to Recognise Personal Stigma of FTA. Only narratives of nurse navigators were quoted. Is this in line with the aims and research questions of the study?—	The majority of data collected on this subject were from Nurse Navigators. We have added the following sentence to clarify. “The majority of quotes come from the Nurse Navigators, but where possible we have added patient comments as a form of triangulation.” P. 8—	—	—	—	—
Bridging the gap. Nurse navigator’s perspectives were interpreted as patient centred by nursing researcher and based on this interpretation this was reasoned as bridging behaviour. I recommend to reconsider this section and keep the difference in talk vs. action (Brunson / Olson 1993) into account. I also recommend to frame this result explicitly as nurse perspective.—	Thank you for the suggestion. We have used the interpretation of Person-centred care as it is a key role principle of the Nurse Navigator service. We have amended this section to make this point clear and to make it clear that this is a nurse perspective. This now reads	—	—	—	—

	“The first key role principle of the Nurse Navigator service is to coordinate person-centred care (1), thus a strong theme emerged within the nursing narrative about the role they play in delivering care to individuals. The nurse navigator narratives demonstrated the important role they play in bridging the gap between medical, allied health, community and acute services. They consistently spoke of how they helped a patient to change, align or reschedule appointments, describing how difficult it was for patients to coordinate multiple appointments across numerous services, geographically distant from each other. Their role is one of being an advocate for patients, bridging the gap through information sharing and discussion with service providers

	alongside, and on behalf of, their patients.” P. 15
- Discussion/Conclusion - The authors offer a successful discussion and adequate conclusion. They discuss “Failure to attend” in contrast with other concepts, e.g. "compliance", and they argue to differ the phrase “Failure to attend” from the phrase “Appointment did not proceed” and the last one should be used when referring to a patient’s inability to attend an appointment	Your time and feedback is very much appreciated.
Reviewer two
Manuscript purpose to capture reasons for "failure to attend" is not truly satisfied through your research questions - How is the phrase FTA described? Priorities of providers that impact patients capacity to attend? and Impact of the FTA label? These are important research questions and should be reflected in the manuscript purpose.	Thank you for the comment. We have amended the questions and they now read 1. How do the nurse navigators and their patients use the term FTA? 2. What are the factors that lead to patients’ failure to attend? 3. What is the reported impact of being labelled on the patients’ wellbeing?
A few minor grammatical issues - example line 565	Grammatical issues amended through out the manuscript.
